

Cupcakes, Cider and Crime: A Sugar N Spice Culinary Cozy Mystery Short Story (MacKenzie and Fitzgerald Romance Suspense Series Book 3)

Hot Apple Cider Supposed To Warm Not Kill UK born Kate MacKenzie, women sleuth and the owner of Sugar N Spice, is providing cupcake catering for high tech icon, Zuber, in the sleepy village of Bangalow, Australia when the founders girlfriend, Emma White, drops dead; poisoned after sipping hot apple cider during the toast. Kate and her romantic interest Lachlan Fitzgerald are once again thrust together in another tense romance mystery and suspense episode. The hotel owner is dumb founded. But his concerns are not for Emma but the reputation of his hotel. He immediately approaches part time amateur sleuth Kate to solve the crime before the police arrive. Poisoning is not random. Its a private, personal affair is Kate Mackenzies credo as she seeks to save her business and the hotels reputation. But sifting through the myriad of suspects including the founders uncle who has a dodgy past, a brother with a chip on his shoulder and Kates very own devious personal assistant all with secrets to hide only makes this romance mystery more intriguing. In the latest romance mystery short story Australian crime fiction author C T Mitchell masterfully creates a feast of twists and turns in this women sleuth series culinary mystery that will keep you guessing right to the end. If cupcakes were art; Kates would be Van Goghs
